REPORT OF BLOOD DONATION CAMP

INTRODUCTION

On the occasion of National Pharmacy Education Day, celebrated on 6th March to commemorate the birth anniversary of Prof. Mahadeva Lal Schroff, AIMS College of Pharmacy organized a Blood Donation Camp in collaboration with Plasma Blood Bank.

To celebrate this occasion and encourage social responsibility among students & staff, AIMS College of Pharmacy organized a Blood Donation Camp in the auditorium. Students and staff members from the Pharmacy, Physiotherapy, and Nursing departments, along with teaching and non-teaching staff, actively participated in the program.

OBJECTIVES

- To promote social responsibility and humanitarian values among students and staff members.
- To encourage voluntary blood donation and highlight its importance in saving lives.

EXPLANATION

The program began with an introductory session by Naysa shaikh highlighting the significance of National Pharmacy Education Day and the contributions of Prof. Mahadeva Lal Schroff to the field of pharmacy.

A representative from Plasma Blood Bank also addressed the gathering and explained the importance of blood donation. He highlighted that one unit of donated blood can help save multiple lives, especially during medical emergencies, surgeries, and treatments for serious diseases.

The blood donation camp received enthusiastic participation from students and staff members. Students from the Pharmacy, Physiotherapy, and Nursing departments, along with teaching and non-teaching staff, voluntarily donated blood. In total, 35 units of blood were successfully collected, making the camp a meaningful and impactful initiative.

CONCLUSION

The Blood Donation Camp, organized as a Social Awareness Program, was a successful initiative aimed at promoting the importance of voluntary blood donation and creating awareness about its life-saving benefits. The program helped students and staff understand their social responsibility toward society and encouraged them to participate in humanitarian activities. The enthusiastic participation of students, faculty, and non-teaching staff led to the successful collection of 35 units of blood. The camp not only contributed to helping patients in need but also strengthened the spirit of community service, compassion, and social awareness among all participants.
